T0444 Special issue. Ciudad usada 1 [Used city 1].
Article in English, Spanish by Pierre Bourdieu and others; diagrs, details, elevns, illus, models, photos, plans, ports, refs, secns.
This issue studies different forms of temporary appropriation and use of the city that come to be operative acts of transformation. It analyses the urban space's capacity for transformation as a result of the use made of it both by the individual subject and by certain forms of collective grouping with greater or lesser degrees of cohesion, situations in which social groups have an intense presence that affects a specific part of the city. The idea is to explore the representation, interpretation and explication of this collective identity and its transforming potential. Includes: Ephemeral cities - photographs by Sergio Belinchon, p. 12-27; Site effects by Pierre Bourdieu, p. 28-37; City and justice: social movements in the city, by David Harvey, p. 38-47; Occupied territories, by Ramon Parramon, p. 48-59; Diego Ferrari - Spaces at the centre, Barcelona, 2002, p. 60-83; Silverline tower, Almere (Claus & Kaan), p. 114-123; Silodam - housing silo in Amsterdam (MVRDV), p. 124-135; Student hostel, Glockengasse, Salzburg, Austria (Peter Ebner and Gunter Eckerstorfer), p. 136-143; Mixed block, Munich (Brandlhuber & Kniess & Partner, p. 144-149; 24 housing units beside an expressway, Vall d'Hebron, Barcelona (Manel Brullet and Conxita Balcells), p. 150-155; Housing beside a square, Manresa (Horacio Espeche and others), p. 156-161; Housing, rue des Suisses, Paris (Herzog & de Meuron), p. 162-179; Office and residential buildings in Herrnstrasse, Munich (Herzog & de Meuron), p. 180-185.

Article in English, Spanish by Pierre Bourdieu and others; diagrs, details, elevns, illus, models, photos, plans, ports, refs, secns.
This issue studies different forms of temporary appropriation and use of the city that come to be operative acts of transformation. It analyses the urban space's capacity for transformation as a result of the use made of it both by the individual subject and by certain forms of collective grouping with greater or lesser degrees of cohesion, situations in which social groups have an intense presence that affects a specific part of the city. The idea is to explore the representation, interpretation and explication of this collective identity and its transforming potential. Includes: Ephemeral cities - photographs by Sergio Belinchon, p. 12-27; Site effects by Pierre Bourdieu, p. 28-37; City and justice: social movements in the city, by David Harvey, p. 38-47; Occupied territories, by Ramon Parramon, p. 48-59; Diego Ferrari - Spaces at the centre, Barcelona, 2002, p. 60-83; Silverline tower, Almere (Claus & Kaan), p. 114-123; Silodam - housing silo in Amsterdam (MVRDV), p. 124-135; Student hostel, Glockengasse, Salzburg, Austria (Peter Ebner and Gunter Eckerstorfer), p. 136-143; Mixed block, Munich (Brandlhuber & Kniess & Partner, p. 144-149; 24 housing units beside an expressway, Vall d'Hebron, Barcelona (Manel Brullet and Conxita Balcells), p. 150-155; Housing beside a square, Manresa (Horacio Espeche and others), p. 156-161; Housing, rue des Suisses, Paris (Herzog & de Meuron), p. 162-179; Office and residential buildings in Herrnstrasse, Munich (Herzog & de Meuron), p. 180-185.

T1544 Lawrence Alma-Tadema and the modern city of ancient Rome.
Article in English by Elizabeth Prettejohn; illus, refs.
'This paper argues that Alma-Tadema's representations of the ancient city of Rome can be seem as significant explorations of urban experience, parallel to the more familiar nineteenth-century representations of modern Paris. Alma-Tadema distinguishes clearly between the small town environment of Pompeiian subjects and the metropolitan environment of pictures set in the capital. The late nineteenth-century notion of the city's modernity thus provides a novel perspective on traditional fascination with Rome as the ultimate paradigm for the urban.'.

W0005 A wallpaper discovery at Barlaston Hall.
Article in English by Sophie Andreae; illus, photos, plans, ports, refs.
Identification of a scrap of wallpaper from the opening between the staircase hall and the Saloon as being contemporary with the building of the house (1756, architect Sir Robert Taylor) indicates that the Saloon was probably a riot of colour. It had been thought that in the 18th century wallpaper was not associated with principal reception rooms, but the discovery at Barlaston suggests that highly coloured floral designs were at one point considered appropriate for a principal room.

Names index

The Names Index includes names of architects, authors, engineers, designers, planners, organisations, societies, etc. It does not include names of buildings, periodicals, trade names etc. Entries are made according to the Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules. Corporate bodies are entered under the first letter of their names, e.g. Sir Basil Spence Bonnington & Collins is entered under 'Sir', Harry Seidler & Associates under 'Harry', and R. Seifert & Partners under 'R'. No cross-references are made from partners in an architectural practice to the full form. Each entry in the API is coded with a unique reference consisting of a letter and a four-digit number. These code numbers appear in alphabetical and consecutive order. Reference in this index are to these code numbers.

List of subject headings used in this issue

The list below contains all subject headings used in this issue. It is not feasible to include a list of all cross-references – available in Architectural Keywords – but meanwhile the user will be able to locate sought headings by scanning this list. General material on the architecture of a specific country will be found under adjectival entries, e.g. French Architecture, Spanish Architecture, etc., but to locate all material on a specific country each subject heading must be checked to see whether geographical subdivision occurs, e.g. Theatres: Great Britain. A full topographical index is in the cumulative issue.
